

Blame the Brain

Did My Neurons Make Me Do It?

5. April, 18:15, Zürich

Did My Neurons Make Me Do It?

Brain,
mind
&
free will

Are traditional notions of free choice, personal responsibility, and religious faith compatible with a neuroscientific understanding of the brain and cognition?

William Newsome, Professor of Neurobiology and Director of the Stanford University Neuroscience Institute, argues for a view that takes neuroscience seriously while still propagating human choice and freedom, with the ultimate goal of enhancing human growth and health.

This lecture is held in cooperation with VBG, the Christian student movement in Switzerland, and with the kind support of the John Templeton Foundation.

*5. April 2022, 18:15–19:45,
followed by Apéro
Uni Zürich, Aula UZH, KOL-G-201*
zuerich.vbg.net/brain

Kooperationspartner:

University of Zurich™

Department of Economics